DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

- I. The method of determining mass flow utilizing a heat capacity principle.
- II. The method of determining mass flow utilizing a pressure differential measuring instrument.
- III. The method of determining mass flow utilizing a hotwire.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

- I. – Claims 2-5
- II. – Claims 6-8
- III. – Claims 9-10

The following claims are generic: 1, 11-16.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

Invention I does not require a pressure differential measurement means (as required by invention II) or a hotwire (as required by invention III).

Invention II does not require a supply of energy to heat the gas (as required by invention I) or a hotwire (as required by invention III).

Invention III does not require the supply of energy to an insulated tube (as required by Invention I) or a pressure differential measurement means (as required by invention II).
